

Continuous input, asymmetric family, the same six runs read three ways. A fixed step of  $\alpha$  makes the null climb 49%; a fixed step in map space cuts that to 13%; solving for the probe with clamp = 0.080 pins it flat. The scalar curve falls under all three, so the fall is the model, not the probe.

*the best predictor using only maps seen in training.